

THE CUMBERLAND HISTORICAL SOCIETY PRESENTS...

STONE WALLS OF MAINE

Maine stone walls are one of our most enduring reminders of the past. They line country roads, border cemeteries, mark edges of fields and even wind through the woods – sometimes seemingly in the middle of nowhere. Join Master Naturalist and University of Southern Maine professor Cheryl Laz who will help us understand why there are so many stones and stone walls in Maine and what those walls and surrounding terrain can tell us.
